Where Do They Go?

The Story of Suzie Soybean and Bob the Cob

Suzie Soybean

Bob the Cob

© 2019 Imprint Publishing and Communique, Inc., Jefferson City, MO
In the Spring, farmers prepare their fields for planting.

Circle what is needed for growing corn and soybeans.
By Summer, corn and soybeans grow taller.

Farmers watch over their crops and soil all summer to make sure the crops grow and the soil is healthy.
Crop yield is measured in bushels per acre.

An acre is about the size of a football field.
Did you know that animals, like cows, pigs, and chickens, eat most of the corn and soybeans grown in North Dakota?
Aisle #2
- Soy Products
- Corn Products

In the Fall, soybeans and corn are ready for harvest.

Where do Suzie Soybean and Bob the Cob go? Point to the items on these two pages that are made from soybeans and corn.

© 2019 Imprint Publishing and Communique, Inc., Jefferson City, MO
Soybeans and corn from North Dakota are shipped around the world.

For more information, visit our websites:
ndsoybean.org
ndcorn.org

Corn and soybean farmers produce good, healthy food for you and things you use at home every day. Thanks, farmers!